

Janardhanudu, Girish

Girish Janardhanudu is a Senior Consultant at Cigital, Inc.

He is an accomplished software quality assurance professional with over eight and a half years of industry experience in information technology and management. In the past five years, he has been actively engaged in developing software quality assurance solutions. He has worked on projects in a variety of business domains, including financial, regulatory, telecom, factory automation, online trading, data warehousing, and tools development. During these engagements, he has been exposed to different software life-cycle models, processes, and methodologies. He has extensive experience with software risk management, as applied to small and large projects. He received a BE in Computer Science from Bangalore University in India. He is currently pursuing his MBA at Robert. H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland.

Articles

Name	Content Areas
White Box Testing	best-practices/white-box